Dear valued customers and partners,

We are now facing an unprecedented situation in the history.

The spread of coronavirus (COVID-19) has a tremendous impact on all aspects of our health, work, school and the community. In this difficult time, we would like to reach out to you about what we are doing at amnimo, keeping the safety top of mind.

The health and safety are our top priority; not only for customers, but also our employees, their families, and the community amnimo recommends working from home for all employees. We use ingenuity and various digital tools to keep the collaboration going forward.

We also strive to ensure the health and safety of our customers and employees by responding to customers online as much as possible.

We are committed to support your business

Starting with measuring, we provide the tools and support that help your business and organization operate safely and efficiently.

We continue to commit to the success of your business, as it has always been.

Our mission is to make the industrial IoT (IIoT) accessible and easy to use.

Instead of sending someone to the actual site, implementation of remote measuring with our IIoT solution could ensure the efficiency of your business by reducing the risk of safety and outbreak spread.

We are renewing our commitment to your business success and health, and we will continue to provide high value-added IIoT services.

-Could this be measured remotely?

-Could this task be reduced?

-This process can be skipped if you can measure remotely

If you have these questions or ideas to make your business process more secure and safer, please contact us at info@amnimo.com

All amnimo employees are ready to support you.

In these uncertain times, we have realized the power of the connections.

Even though we are apart, we believe our patience, understanding and compassion are needed most to connect us all.

On behalf of amnimo employees, and as your good partner, I promise to continue to support your business.
